MILESTONES ARE EXPRESSIVE OF SIGMA DELTA CHI

Fraternity Adopts Roberts' Speech to Show Respect For Doctor McVey

SAYS EXPERIENCES ARE OUR CALENDARS

Birthday Message to U. of K. President Enlarges Upon Meaning of Friendship

President Frank L. McVey celebrated a birthday last week. At a gathering of the Faculty Club, Professor George Roberts in presenting President McVey with a "Cake of Gold" enlarged upon the meaning of friendship. As Sigma Delta Chi cannot find other words to express its feeling for the respect that it bears the president, it finds that it is entirely appropriate to print this speech as its own sentiments:

Anniversaries are always days of interest. They are milestones in a journey. On them we turn aside from our usual thoughts and indulge in meditations or celebrations appropriate to the particular occasion. I confess that anniversaries greatly fascinate me. I have a long list of them whose recurrence I love because they recall pleasant memories and associations. We have wedding anniversaries, some of us, anniversaries of graduation from college or of other great experiences that we love to recall on the red letter days of our personal calendars.

But birthdays are the common experience of us all, and perhaps the anniversary of greatest personal interest. We do not remember the beginnings of them, but early we pondered the great mystery of whence we came and whither we are going. And when youth comes into a realization that there is a life to live, a destiny to achieve or to be thrust upon him, fraught while happiness or unhappiness or, as it generally the case, a mixture of both, the passing of the years of this brief span of life becomes an impressive fact. The birthday is to all who meditate upon the meaning of life, truly a milestone in a journey from which one not only looks backward, but forward with increasing interest and expectation.

By some, the miles of life are measured off as the miles are measured in a joy-ride; when the end has been reached, it has been reached. To some it is given to make the journey calmly, deliberately—taking in all of the glorious scenery along the way, making them a permanent possession, going along with some intimate companions who help and are helped in the great adventure. They pause now and then and attract to the same highway who are helped to appreciate and appropriate the beauties of the journey.

Though the friendly traveler may not often be met, or may never be met again, there always remains the joyous memory of the association. Such a friendly traveler on life's highway is our honored guest tonight. Each milestone in his journey finds him more richly endowed with great human experiences and richer in his interest in, and good will toward his fellow travelers. President McVey, we are gathered tonight to express our friendship and good will, not primarily to the faithful, capable and beloved president of our University, but to a good friend on his sixtieth birthday. What we are doing is only a feeble expression of the admiration, respect and good will we have for a friend who is friendly because he has caught the meaning of life and lives it richly. "A friend may well be reckoned the masterpiece of nature." This small gift of gold we bring you is not a yardstick that measures; it is a symbol that signifies. It is emblematic of the pure gold of your character and friendship that passes at face value in all realms.

We wish that you may be our president to the limit of three score years and ten, and after that you and your good wife may remain among us through many days of health and happiness. With the Bard of Ayrshire we say: "May Heaven augment your blisses on every new Birthday ye see."

This cake we present to you symbolizes the sweetness of the lives of the two of you.

Professors Apply Old Doctrine Of Horse Sense in Classification

By L. W. McMURRAY

Why have examinations at all? Why so much "red tape" and so many cards from the dean's office when there is an easier method of classifying students?

Recently a professor remarked that the classification of a student is, after all, "just an application of common horse sense, and the results are satisfactory." That instructor stated that he never has to look at a student's "card" in order to make a classification.

The method is simple. When the "Prof." comes into a classroom and begins to take the roll call, all that he does is to await the inevitable. If some sleepy-eyed "chap" comes into the room just as the last name has been called, takes a seat in the rear of the room, and at the same time looks at his watch as if time saved means money made, the professor smiles, asked the name, and

Kernel To Print Special Edition

Practically all the material is already in the hands of the printer for the special "Homecoming" edition of the Kentucky Kernel to be published on Wednesday of next week. This issue will contain various feature stories concerning the plans that have been developed for the entertainment of the returning alumni and visitors. The paper is to contain sixteen pages, made up of special stories on our outstanding alumni, and editorials designed to express the sentiment of the University in appropriately welcoming its returning sons and daughters.

SMITH SELECTED FOR ADDRESSES

National Religious Leader Will Give Talks Under Auspices of University Religious Groups

Dr. Fred B. Smith, moderator of the National Council of the Congregational Churches in the United States, and chairman of the executive committee of the World Alliance for International Friendship, has been selected by the University Y. M. C. A. to speak at the December convocation, at 10 a. m., December 3. Doctor Smith will deliver three other addresses during his stay in Lexington.

Following its annual custom of obtaining one of the country's outstanding religious leaders for one of the University monthly convocations, the Y. M. C. A. was successful in securing for this year's program the man who for seventeen years served as secretary of the international committee of Y. M. C. A. work. In a recent testimonial dinner, given in honor of Doctor Smith by two hundred and fifty clergymen and friends the Doctor's "great admiration for the character and appreciation of his outstanding services to the religious life of the world during his forty years of intense activity."

Dates for Doctor Smith's other speaking engagements there will be announced later, Bart Peak, Y. M. C. A. secretary, said yesterday. One of these will probably be an address to the engineering assembly.

GRADUATE DEAN GIVES LECTURE

Dean Funkhouser Speaks to Meeting of Professional Groups on Archaeological Deposits of Kentucky

Seventy-five members and guests of the Business and Professional Women's Club of the Y. W. C. A. and the Business Girls' Club heard Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, dean of the Graduate School of the University, in an address delivered at the club dinner Tuesday, November 19.

Dr. Funkhouser stated that in the research and exploration conducted in Lee county, in eastern Kentucky, that many evidences of an early people who preceded the Indians in this country were found. These were in a good state of preservation and showed the nature of the textiles used by this primitive race of inhabitants. Bags, moccasins, and other articles were uncovered by the archaeologists, most of them well preserved in wood ashes.

In Logan county, in western Kentucky, some 15 or 20 mounds were discovered. Some of these mounds were surrounded by walls of stone nine feet thick at the base, and four feet thick at the top, Dr. Funkhouser said. In every case they contained great quantities of human bones, of persons burned or otherwise sacrificed. This type of mound has never been found in any other spot in the Mississippi valley, according to Dr. Funkhouser.

University archaeologists brought back 14 baskets of human bones, which will be used, along with other articles discovered, as specimens in a museum which is eventually to be built at the University. In all probability, one of these mounds will be reconstructed as near like the original as possible, Dr. Funkhouser told club members.

Fraternity man—late hours—needs an 'A' in the course.

After the lecture has been in progress for a few minutes a student suddenly decides that it's all a lie and the textbook is wrong. At the same time he adds a few useful suggestions as to the proper method of conducting the class, etc.

Classification: Law student—knows he's wrong—trying to convince himself that he's right.

Another type of student (if that term can be used to designate an ignorant) is the little co-ed who never misses a day at school, takes a front seat (and keep it), looks intelligent at times, and when asked a question, replies, "I don't know."

Concept: Education student—knows nothing—likes knowledge.

BLACK EXPLAINS MAGNA CHARTA AT LAW COLLEGE

Two Hundred Students Are Present to Hear Lecture

FALSE BELIEFS ARE CITED BY PROFESSOR

Authorities In Early Times Had Limited Knowledge of Government

Dr. Forrest Black of the School of Law, lectured Wednesday at eleven o'clock, in the law building, on the "Magna Charta" to a crowd of nearly two hundred, invited under the auspices of Pan Politikon. Doctor Black pointed out many of the fallacies that are current in connection with the effect that the early English document has had on our own constitutional history.

There are at least four distinct theories about the character of instrument that the Magna Charta purports to be. One following of historians consider that the charter itself, resulting from the activities of the great barons at Runnymede on June 15, 1215, was the nature of a legislative enactment declaratory of certain desired rights.

Still another following of commentators are of the opinion that the charter was a treaty effected between the nobles who were representative of a considerable portion of the more influential English people on the one hand and King John on the other.

Other historians are of the belief that the charter is of the nature of a contract between the great nobles and King John wherein they made certain agreements regarding the military, financial, and judicial well being of the realm in exchange for certain rights secured to them in the instrument.

Perhaps the most logical of all a bargain or agreement, declaratory of the theories relevant to the development of the instrument is that it is of certain rights demanded by the nobles and justified by conditions current at that time. The more prominent American and English constitutional authorities have considered the document in that light.

Irrespective of the nature of the original document, it is certain that many fallacies are current now regarding the effect that it has had on our present democratic government. Only the most limited group of rights, if in fact any at all, that are contained in our present Federal and State constitutions can be traced to the Magna Charta. Even then it is quite likely that these provisions are more correctly traced to the Bill of Rights or the Petition of Rights because they embodied certain rights and privileges more characteristic of modern times.

Doctor Black pointed out the very limited knowledge of the authorities at that particular time in matters pertaining to government, as illustrated in the method of enforcement. Some twenty-five of the leading barons of the realm, all enemies of the king, were to be the judges as to whether the king was carrying out his part of the agreement. In any case, the king was given only forty days to carry out the dictates of the group and in case he did not, 61 of the charter, the nobles were warranted in an organized rebellion to enforce their decree.

The entire lecture was of the nature of a protest against the unjustified and perhaps uninformed attempts on the part of a considerable majority of the American people today to trace our constitutional development directly to the early English Magna Charta.

JONES FOSTERS LEAGUE MEETING

Twenty Kentucky Cities Are Represented at First Annual Municipal Group Assembly

DOCTOR M'VEY SPEAKS

Representatives of 20 Kentucky cities attended the first annual meeting of the Kentucky Municipal League fostered by Dr. J. C. Jones, of the department of Political Science of the University of Kentucky, at the city hall in Lexington, on Wednesday afternoon, at 1:30.

Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the University, delivered a short talk to the various representatives of nearly twenty Kentucky cities on the problems that confront them as officials in the different cities of Kentucky.

Dr. Jones is the secretary of the Kentucky Municipal League which was formed last April for the express purpose of developing a greater cooperation among the municipalities of the state. It was pointed out that the expenditures of many of the municipalities is not justified in the light of experience. The main objective of the league is to disseminate such information through its secretary that it will be able to provide a greater efficiency in governmental matters in all the municipalities over the state, and particularly to provide a library or source of authoritative information that the members may be furnished with expert advice of current problems which may arise.

KAT TO FEATURE CAMPUS SCANDAL

Humor Publication Has Many Disreputable Stories That Should Be a Matter of Common Knowledge

SALE ON THANKSGIVING

On Thanksgiving morning when the alumni and students of the University are awake to the diversions of homecoming, one of the foremost features to strike their attention will be the homecoming edition of the Kampus Kat. The Kampus Kat has ever been a humorous publication, and it is hoped to make this year's publication excel those of former years. All copy has been turned in to Edwards M. Templin, editor, who promises a publication that will be at once the delight and embarrassment of many students on the campus.

The Kampus Kat is published several times during each year, by the members of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity. It contains not only the various "wise-cracks" that have been collected during the year, but also an expose of current campus scandal. Potential poets have rhymed the doings of campus characters in a manner that is destined to provoke no little merriment.

Certain prominent features are to be included in this edition that are unique to the publication. "The Love Letters of an Interior Decorator" is an expose of the amorous activities of the social celebrities of the campus. The illiterate musings of one, Peter Greenlee, Jr., is a series of excerpts from a confidential diary of a very ordinary university scribe and contains his impressions of various campus characters.

The Kampus Kat will be distributed Thursday morning by newsboys and in the afternoon will be sold by the members and pledges of Sigma Delta Chi at the football game.

AN APPEAL

On the foot-ball field Homecoming Day, our team will demonstrate to a large audience comprised of people from all parts of this section of the country, that the University of Kentucky has a football team that embodies all of the factors that go to make up an ideal college football team.

It becomes the duty of the student body to cooperate with the team in demonstrating to this same audience, at the game and the social affair later, that we are attempting to make our University the largest and best in the South. This can be accomplished largely by manifestation of true hospitality, and a state of irreproachable conduct on the part of every student of the University.

It is the unpleasant duty of the Men's Student Council to regulate student discipline. We ask that you cooperate, and add that the least that we can do is our duty.

Signed: HENRY S. SCOTT, Pres., Men's Student Council.

This association has a membership of 48 State Universities and Agricultural Colleges. It formulates the national policies of these institutions in resident teaching, research work, extension teaching and other fields of activity.

T. R. Bryant, assistant director of the extension department of the College of Agriculture, was elected president of the agricultural extension section of the association.

President Frank L. McVey, Prof. L. J. Horlacher, Prof. State Erickson, Dean Cooper, and Mr. Bryant attended the meeting at Chicago.

HOMECOMING TO BE CELEBRATED BY SUKY CIRCLE

Coach Gamage and Wildcats Will Be Guests of Pep Rally

DOWNTOWN STORES TO BE IN GALA ATTIRE

Loving Cup Is Offered For Best Decorated House on Campus

The Su-Ky circle has been active during the last few days perfecting arrangements for the greatest homecoming that the University of Kentucky has ever seen. It plans that have been developed are carried even to partial completion. Lexington and the University will present a gala appearance to the alumni and visitors when they return for the annual homecoming game.

First of all, the circle is presenting a beautiful loving cup to the fraternity or sorority that has the best decorated house and grounds. It is expected that many miniature football fields will be constructed, and ribbons of the colors of the two schools should be in great abundance. The committee who are to judge the winning house will consider the fact that certain natural features may make some houses more easy to decorate than others. The cup to be given as first prize is now on display at the Tavern.

The usual pep night ceremonies will be observed, except that Coach Harry Gamage and his entire football team will be the guests of the pep club at the gymnasium in a mammoth pep spectacle to begin at seven o'clock on Wednesday evening. Certain prominent alumni are to be called on to speak and every student of the University, as well as many of the returning alumni will arrange to be there.

After the pep meeting at the gymnasium, a bonfire will be held and the freshmen will parade through the main streets of the city. It is hoped that the pep which is stimulated at the meeting will not be permitted to die down until after the game Thursday afternoon.

Various committees have been appointed to cooperate with downtown business men in decorating their stores in fitting manner for the welcome of returning alumni and visitors. Mr. Ted Cassidy will represent the student body, and the Su-Ky circle in an endeavor to secure the cooperation of business men in decorating their places of business. A huge sign, "Welcome Homecomers" or some such emblem is to hang suspended across the Main street.

While it has been necessary to change the date of the dance and dinner to be given in honor of the football team and for visiting members, the date of which will not be released until next week. Plans are well under way for the entertainment of the visitors with a dinner dance that will be one of the outstanding social events of the entire season.

NEW DIRECTORY IS PUBLISHED

Handbook Compiled by Office of Registrar Contains Information Valuable to Students

Students desiring to obtain a copy of the 1929 Student Directory may do so by calling at the Registrar's office. This handbook, annually compiled by the Office of the Registrar, contains valuable information to students and members of the faculty. In it are listed all the names of the faculty and student body, including telephone number, street address, and additional information as to classification or position.

Because of the increased enrollment at the University, this year's issue contains forty more pages than that of last year. It is the same in size and color and contains 2900 names of students. There are 467 names listed under the division devoted to administration, instruction, experiment station, and the clerical staff.

The student whose name heads the list is Henry Clay Aaron, Alexandria, registered as a freshman in the Agricultural College. Earnest Herman Zwick, Rochester, N. Y., sophomore engineer, plays the part of the "cow's tail" to end the list with number 2900.

The following student organizations and their officers are listed: Women's Self Governing Association, Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A. honorary fraternities, Women's Athletic Association, Pan-Hellenic, Women's fraternities, resident halls, Men's Student Council, Kentuckian, Kentucky Kertul, Kentucky Law Journal, Agricultural Society, Block and Bridge club, Henry Clay Law Society, Men's Pan-Hellenic Council, and professional and honorary fraternities.

Fraternity Publishes Paper First Time Since Group Was Organized

This issue of The Kernel was published by Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalistic fraternity. This is the first time that the organization has published the Kernel, and it is the plan of the members to make this an annual event.

The fraternity was founded at DePauw University at Greencastle, Ind., April 17, 1909, for the purpose of raising the standards of journalism. Today there are 43 chapters of the fraternity in the United States and Canada. In the fall of 1925 students of journalism at the University of Kentucky petitioned a charter from Sigma Delta Chi. The charter was formally installed Feb. 27, 1927.

Associate members of the fraternity are John Stoll, editor of the Lexington Leader and Dean Paul Boyd, of the college of arts and sciences.

"Kaydet" Uniforms; Virginia Hospitality Warms Kentuckians

By AL STOFFEL

Someone once told us that Lexington, Va., is a town so slow that the inhabitants are still ignorant of the passage of a national prohibition law, and now that we've been there we believe it. That is, we believe the inhabitants are ignorant, or they wouldn't continue to live there. But then, as the dog growled, hunting for his favorite flea, that is neither here nor there.

Anyway, Kentucky defeated V. M. I. 24-13, which, incidentally, is the only bit of news you will find in this story, if any. The only reason we put it in was to sort of save our conscience, and give an excuse to continue, which we will do, in spite of your protests.

What we really wanted to talk about was those natty uniforms worn by the V. M. I. "Kaydets." You know, gray, with black stripes on the trousers, and gray overcoats, with a shoulder cape grey on one side and red on the other. The kind that make the girls heave sighs, and their civilian boy friend heave rocks. What is this peculiar power gray uniforms have over women? On the Many, many years ago, in fact, just about the time the Bible was being prepared for publication, there existed a popular hero named David. His companions in the tribe of Judah were proud of this plucky little chap and the more bold among them were glad to speak of him familiarly as "Dave." It was all because one bright day this lad had carefully adjusted his slingshot and disposed of an undesirable giant called Goliath.

Next Thursday afternoon when thousands of hungry, homecoming, Kentucky alumni and additional thousands of students and ardent supporters fill the concrete stadium and overrun into temporary bleachers at Stoll field, the University of Kentucky football team, affectionately called "Wildcats," will attempt to dispose of another giant. The monster, impersonated by the University of Tennessee Volunteers, is striding boldly forward on his quest for the Southern Conference crown.

Supporting thousands of Philistines will accompany the team to Lexington to cheer their champion as he does battle with an underdog who disputes his right to the championship. To date, the Vols, led by Captain Howard Johnson and the famous Hack and Mack combination, are strutting through the sport world with six conference games tucked safely away under their belt and one eye cocked confidently on the victorious feast. Sunrise of Turkey Day will find countless fans in breathless suspense over the outcome of the fray. Sunset of the same day will see either a mighty team continue its march to the sign of success or a glorious demonstration in honor of another popular idol who has conquered the giant that threatened the populace.

Coach Harry Gamage is leaving no stone unturned in his efforts to throw every possible advantage to the way of his charges for the annual "Battle of the Beer Keg." The Wildcats, fresh from a victorious charge over the V. M. I. Cadets, have been hard put all week by their mentor, who was far from satisfied with their performance against the Virginians. Although winning by a comfortable margin, the Big Blue was awfully slow in starting and at no time during the contest gave any evidence of the spirit that has featured their previous playing. The "Cats" went aimlessly about the task of winning the game but the coaching staff realizes that such an attitude would be lamentable against an outfit of the calibre of Tennessee.

Shuffled lineups have been prominent on the Wildcat practice field since that game and it would not be surprising if the Kentucky leader sends a greatly altered team into the fray on Thanksgiving. But the fans may rest assured that all of the men who will represent Kentucky on that day will be in excellent condition and "rarin' to go."

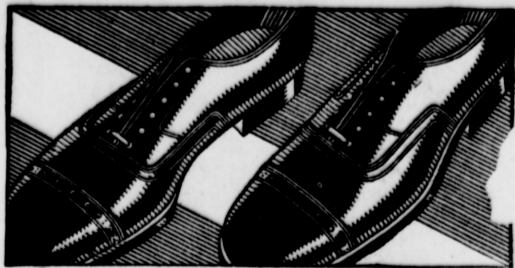

On paper, the Volunteers have a decisive margin over the "Blue Grass" boys, if that means anything. Earlier in the season, Tennessee eliminated what is now considered the strongest team in the south from the title race, edging out a 7 to 0 victory over Alabama when the Tide was severely handicapped by injuries and was yet to reach the peak of its stride. Two weeks ago, as most of the Kentuckians remember to their sorrow, the Wildcats, minus the services of their scoring star, "Shipwreck" Kelly, fell prey to Wade's challenging Crimson by a count of two touchdowns after leading throughout the major portion of the contest. These statistics spot

There was one, however, who held his own against the "kaydets," and that was our elongated drum major, of the "best band in Dixie." Someone departed with his civilian clothes and didn't tell him about it so he had to wear his uniform the whole time. Beside him the "kaydets" looked like a convention of Western Union messenger boys.

Members of the University of Kentucky football squad were praised in a letter received by Prof. S. A. "Daddy" Boles, athletic director at the institution, from John D. Clothier, manager of the Natural Bridge, Va., hotel, headquarters of the Wildcats when they invaded the stronghold of Virginia Military Institute's eleven last Saturday.

Mr. Clothier, in his letter, states: "I take this opportunity of telling you what a wonderful aggregation of boys we think you have. I do not think we have ever entertained a more orderly and certainly not more delightful crowd of boys than the ones you have under your care, and I hope at some future time we will be able to have you with us again."

Fassnacht Players On Artist Program

The people of the city of Lexington are soon to enjoy the talents of outstanding artists in two sterling presentations as a part of the program of Miss Anna Chandler-Goff, director of the Lexington College of Music. It is not often that such musical and dramatic treats are available.

On December 3, 1929, Senor Alfredo San-Melo, a premier violinist will make his appearance at the Woodland Auditorium. San-Melo is the protégé of the government of the Republic of Panama and a graduate with honors from the Paris Conservatory of Music when he was only seventeen years of age. He has made appearances in most of the European countries and has been touring this country for two years. American critics aptly style him the "Aristocrat of the Violin."

On December 6-7, a religious spectacle, "The Passion Play" from Frieberg, Germany, which has been presented in Europe for more than seven hundred years will be presented. In some of the scenes over two hundred people appear. Many of the cast have been with the company for a great many years and have excellent reputations for their rendition of the characters that they play. The part of "Mary" mother of Jesus, is taken by Augustus Fassnacht who has played the part for 29 years. Mr. George Fassnacht plays the part of "Judas" a role that he has played for 25 years.

These two attractions promise a type of entertainment that should be taken advantage of by college students, and especially those who are interested in the finer things of college education.

ON, ON, U. OF K.

The students of the University of Kentucky this year are becoming conscious of a certain difference that distinguishes this year from all others in the history of the University. There is a deep-seated sentiment and enthusiasm which breathes from the student body which is usually characteristic of only the older and larger schools.

Many reasons have been assigned for this difference. It may be because Kentucky has a winning football team for the first time in a great many years. It may be on account of the concerted efforts of the "pep clubs" to stimulate the sort of enthusiasm that the team deserves. Lastly, it may be because the students of the University of Kentucky are becoming conscious that they are a part of a great university.

Heretofore, many of the sons and daughters of the more prominent families in the state of Kentucky have gone to other universities in search of higher education. The unparalleled progress of the last few years is mute testimony that it is no longer necessary to go outside the state to be benefited by the instruction of men who are outstanding in their respective fields.

Under the able leadership of President Frank L. McVey, the University of Kentucky bids fair to take its place with the leading state universities of the nation. The people of the state of Kentucky have begun to support their state university in a manner that presages continued growth. The students, by their united efforts in many directions, are making it possible for the authorities to direct the development of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts in lines most beneficial to the industrial possibilities of the State of Kentucky.

Of the various groups that are interested in the progress of the University, perhaps none are more concerned than the alumni. They have played an essential part in the present day realization of the enviable position of the University. Appreciating what the University means to them we should also be able to define our own responsibilities.

The coming week is a critical period in athletic history of the University. The Wildcats Wildcats have an opportunity to emerge from the ranks and take their stand at the top of the list. We cannot expect a realization of that ambition without united support on the part of every student of the University. The alumni will doubtless be impressed with the bigness of the University. Furthermore, they should also be impressed with the fact that the present student body is retaining, and even exploiting the renowned hospitality of the "Blue Grass." And, perhaps, "We'll bring home the victory." But whether or not we emerge victorious in the struggle on the gridiron, a greater battle remains to be won. The University of Kentucky is destined to unparalleled progress during the years to come. With the support that it deserves it should take its place with the older institutions of the country, and cooperating with them, shoulder the burden of competently training the youth of the nation in fields that will manifestly make a greater state of Kentucky, and incidentally enhance the scholastic worth of our own "U. of K."

SIGMA DELTA CHI

Sigma Delta Chi, international professional journalistic fraternity, was founded at DePauw University, April 17, 1909. Since the beginning of the fraternity, over twenty years ago, it has expanded into an organization that is one of the most widely recognized and largest groups in the entire professional field. It has had as its sole aim the elevation of the standards of the profession of journalism. At first, Sigma Delta Chi was a purely honorary organization. By 1916 it had become entirely a professional organization. In the fall of 1926, an earnest group of students at the University of Kentucky decided to form a press club with the express purpose of petitioning and obtaining a charter from Sigma Delta Chi. At the national convention that fall, the group, then known as the Henry Watterson Press Club, presented its petition and was granted admission into the fraternity. The Kentucky chapter was formally installed the evening of February 27, 1927, by Edwin V. O'Neil, now national secretary and editor of the Indianapolis Times.

The chapter at the University of Kentucky has been very industrious and is constantly concerned in the promotion of the interests of journalism. Every year it takes charge of the publication of the Kampus Kat, which has been cited as one of the outstanding humor publications of the country. With the present membership of the organization, and the auspicious start that it has shown in the short period of its existence at the University, there seems to be a wonderful opportunity to gain national recognition for Kentucky's journalists and to bring honor to the University.

GOOD WORK, SUKY

Irrespective of the many critical comments that have been directed at the SuKy Circle during the year, it is meritorious of the organization that it has overlooked much of the deserved criticism and is endeavoring to further extend its service to the University and to the student body by promoting an invincible enthusiasm for the homecoming game.

There is a noticeably better spirit prevalent on the campus of the University this year. The SuKy Circle has organized a "pep club" that has aspirations of eclipsing all cheering that has been done at past football games. To date the circle has been instrumental in furnishing various means conducive to more concerted cheering on the part of the student body. And all this is not accomplished without some considerable effort on the part of SuKy!

Whether we win or lose, the united support on the part of the student body will be a direct result of the tireless activities of the SuKy Circle. Since this activity comes about as a spontaneous contribution by students who are interested in seeing the University advance, it is deserving of commendation.

Among other things, the SuKy Circle will entertain the football squad, cheer leaders and alumni members of the Circle who are living in Lexington on the evening of November 29. That, with other plans for homecoming, should well indicate that the SuKy Circle will continue to serve its great purposes.

Recently the Madison School for the Blind, put forth an exceptionally good football team. The team plays according to all regulations, except the forward pass is barred.

THE EDITOR SPEAKS

Dear little boys and girls of Radio Land, you have in your hands the first effort of Sigma Delta Chi to edit the newspaper of the University of Kentucky without the aid and assistance of sundry members of our fraternity who regularly slave at the job, and like it.

After learning of the numerous trials and tribulations that beset the amateur editor I think there is more credit due the editor and managing editor of our paper than most of us realize. Everything runs so smoothly and efficiently when they are at their usual posts that most of us who were selected for the various jobs of editing thought it would be fun. It was—Editor Frye and Managing Editor Temple.

Here's hoping someone runs off with the press before they get the next paper printed, and may all their sons be chorus boys.

Now that we, the staff, have experienced the hardest work that someone else usually does for The Kernel, we feel that with our object lesson in mind there will result a closer understanding and better cooperation throughout the whole organization of embryonic journalists at the University of Kentucky than could have ever resulted in any other way.

THE EDITOR.

COLLEGE MORALS

If we are to judge from recent articles in newspapers and magazines we should be of the impression that colleges is the home of immorality, of laxity in administration, of irresponsible young men and women. And yet the surprising fact is that if these persons who so strenuously condemn college would interview the professors of colleges and universities, talk the matter over with the parents of these young people, learn to know personally these young men and women, they would find an entirely different situation. They would find among these people the truest and finest of the younger generation.

The home is by far the main force in its relation to and dependence upon the college. No young man or woman can go farther than his home allows him or encourages him to do. Fundamentally the youth is the product of the aspirations and hopes of his parents, limited only by the start in life which they have given him biologically, mentally and morally. An article in the September issue of "Good Housekeeping" endeavors to answer the question "Is my daughter safe at college?" Reta S. Halle, the author, replies: "Yes, if she is safe at home." That fact is all too true. The home is the foundation for a young person and the love and care which follow him are his constant inspiration and guide.

Here are a number of rules which are an inspiration to the college student—to make him constantly searching for the noblest which is offered to him:

1. Go to seek and find the best.
 2. Be willing to give and serve to the greatest of your capacity.
 3. Learn everything that there is to learn and learning is not restricted to books, but includes friendships and associates, religious training, and social experience.
 4. Don't be afraid to work.
 5. Realize that the more you learn the more there is to learn. The knowledge which comes should only serve as a key to greater and broader possibilities.
 6. Don't lose sight of values. The egotism of over-sophistication or, on the other hand inferiority which frequently enter the consciousness of the young college students are devastating to his plans and to his hopes and ambitions as well as his friendships.
 7. Don't lose your ideals. Let your college experience be the means of raising these standards, rather than of lowering them.

The University of Tennessee is adding to its curriculum a course in aviation. Maybe the Vols are contemplating an airplane trip to the Rose Bowl on New Year's day, and then again maybe Kentucky will need some airplanes for the same purpose.

Men students at the University of Illinois recently went on a strike against the pressers of Urbana, and declared that they will not longer wear pressed trousers. We suggest they wear buttonless trousers for protection against their laundrymen.

School Paper Prints Story By Principal

Prof. M. E. Ligon, principal of University High School and connected with the College of Education, has written an article on teachers and teacher training, appearing in the November issue of School Life, published monthly by the United States Department of Education.

"Training and Teaching Combinations of Teachers in Accredited Secondary Schools of the South" is the title of Professor Ligon's work. The article is a study of the training of teachers and teaching combinations in accredited secondary schools of the South to determine to what extent subjects taught are those in which teacher majored in higher institutions.

Professor Ligon's study points out that the percentage of instructors assigned to teach subjects in which they have made special preparation does not indicate that the assignment of teachers on the basis of training had received adequate attention. Professor Ligon has studied thousands of cases in preparing much influence among schools this work which is expected to yield selecting teachers and those training instructors.

Wiest Back From Inspection Tour

Dean Edward Wiest of the College of Commerce of the University returned yesterday from a two-day inspection of Kentucky colleges. The tour of the colleges was made in connection with the Accredited Relations Committee, of which Dean Wiest is a member.

Three colleges were visited by the committee, whose purpose is the inspection of all junior colleges in the state to determine whether they meet all the requirements for University accrediting. Campbellsville College, Campbellsville; Lindsey-Wilson, Columbia; and St. Mary's College, Lebanon, were the institutions visited.

The remainder of the junior colleges of the state will be visited at an early date, it was announced.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA TAKES FOOTBALL SERIOUSLY

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia. — If American college students are the objects of criticism because they place too much apparent importance on football games they may point their critics to Central Europe, where the winning of international football contests has become second in the importance to the honor of the various countries only to that of winning military scraps.

According to the outlook of the Czechoslovakian press, if this nation loses its football game with Hungary, the future of the nation is lost.

Similar interest in an international football game was experienced last year when Austria beat Italy in a game at Vienna, and the Italian press was so outraged at the loss that it almost seriously asked for a military invasion of the opponent's territory.

One Prague newspaper recently shouted to the players, calling them individually by name.

"You footballers must realize the great and honorable responsibility which is yours of carrying our colors in the greatest football match in our history."

Some decisions can't be put off till tomorrow!

The basketball player who took very long to decide between passing the ball and trying for a basket would soon lose his chances to do either.

And the man who keeps putting off his decision in the choice of a career may lose his chance to be very effective at anything. Isn't it true that not a few men up to their senior year are still very uncertain what work to take up after graduation?

The result is that many a born artist, becomes an indifferent engineer, and many a potential lawyer, a poor salesman.

Dr. Vandembosch Visits In London

Word has been received by the political science department that Doctor Vandembosch, who is on a leave of absence to study various forms of governments in other countries, was in London last week. Doctor Vandembosch has been doing research work in the Netherlands, but due to trouble with his eyes which has resulted from his study, he was forced to cease his work for a while, and went with Mrs. Vandembosch to London. He expects to return to the Netherlands immediately. In a letter to Prof. Jones, Doctor Vandembosch asked to be remembered to his friends at the University.

Moderns of Today Are Better Parents

Los Angeles—The so-called sheiks and flappers of today are making better parents than their parents, according to Miss Justina M. Eich, dean of women at Capital University, Columbus, Ohio.

"Youth today handles his problems as well as we could or did, only he's frank about them," says Dean Eich.

"Complexities of today are a greater challenge to his self-control, but they are not submerging his character."

LIMESTONE AT SHORT ST.

Just as I told you, this has been one of the most brilliant weeks in the theatrical history of this fair city. With three important representatives of the silver sheet in evidence and a powerful exponent of the spoken stage in hand the week's rialto has been a glorified one.

—TLR—

The motion pictures have almost run the gamut of college stories but still they come and among the two on exhibition next week we have "So This Is College," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production directed by Sam Wood. This picture has a cast of several new faces including Sally Starr who at least has plenty of looks. This is an all talking affair and will run a week with one of those delicious Saturday night premieres starting at the Ben Ali theater at 10:15 p. m. tomorrow.

—TLR—

Next week's presentation of the Alney Alba Players at the Opera house should be well worth your attention. The play is called "Fair and Warmer," and features two comedy roles to be enacted by "Walley" Griggs and Francis Sayles. I'll guarantee Mr. Sayles' performance. "Fair and Warmer" is said to be a hilarious farce which should prove refreshing after the raw, blood-dripping "Trial of Mary Dugan."

—TLR—

Fairy Tale: Once upon a time a man went to the Strand theater and missed all those insipid advertisements on the screen.

—TLR—

No actress of the cinema has led a more varied career than has Gloria Swanson. She was, for a time, a principal star in the movie horizon but then Paramount began handing her poor stories and supporting casts so she faded. She then started producing for herself and after a weak effort in "Loves of Sunya," she turned out "Sadie Thompson," a winner. Then she started "Queen Kelly" under the direction of Erich Von Stroheim and after spending over a million dollars on it the picture was shelved without ever having a public showing. Now she comes out with "The Trespasser," released by United Artists, and it is an all talking picture. It has been accorded a hearty reception in other cities and I recommend it to you. It opens at the Kentucky Sunday.

—TLR—

An actress that has stolen much of Miss Swanson's thunder is Greta Garbo, often referred to as "the Swedish iceberg" in Hollywood. She is, at present, perhaps the most popular feminine star in films and I think she deserves that distinction. Her last silent picture, "The Kiss," will open at the Strand Sunday and Conrad Nagel plays the male lead in this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production. I do not know much about the story. However, Garbo pulls a big hand out of me so I look forward to seeing the picture.

—TLR—

M-G-M was dubious about Greta Garbo appearing in talkies but she has started her first and succeeded in filming the longest talking sequence in the history of the spoken era. The scene ran almost nine minutes and they say that Greta was perfectly at home before the microphone.

—TLR—

The other college movie for next week is called "Forward Pass" and it opens for a three-day run at the State theater Sunday. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. plays the lead opposite Loretta Young. It is a First National all talking effort. Think I'll pass this one up.

—TLR—

They tell me that Alney Alba has received an offer to appear in the lead of John Golden's new play. Now tell me that we haven't a real stock company in Lexington.

—TLR—

"Hallelujah," M-G-M picture, Ben Ali. In my opinion, the best picture in town. A genuine triumph.

U. K. PRESIDENT IS HONOR SPEAKER

University President Speaks To Alumni of Louisville University at the Brown Hotel.

"The Modern University" was the title of an address delivered by President McVey at a banquet given by the Alumni Association of the University of Louisville Wednesday night at the Brown hotel. The banquet was given in honor of Dr. Raymond A. Kent, recently inaugurated president of the University of Louisville.

Dr. McVey paid tribute to Doctor Kent in his address for his past accomplishments and discussed the progress and development that he should make with the University of Louisville in the future. Speaking on the modern University Doctor McVey said that the president could not be likened to the captain of a pirate ship because the function of the president was not absolute despotism. Tyranny will never bring progress and development, but rather it must come about through the cooperation of the trustees, the citizens, and the students with the president of the institution.

President McVey pointed out the four most important functions of the modern university as being teaching, a determined and thorough search for new knowledge, publication of the findings of the research departments of the University, and the maintenance of libraries and museums so that the students of the university and the general public may become acquainted with the most recent developments in art, literature, and science. "The modern university is the torch bearer of the future come from it but we must look to it for our future leaders," said Doctor McVey. He called attention to the marvelous advances that have been made in the 20th century, especially in physics and chemistry. These developments have been brought about through the scholarly attitude toward science that has been fostered by the universities.

Mayor William B. Harrison of Louisville also made a short talk at the banquet. Guests included President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern University, President George Zook of the University of Akron, President Louis D. Coffman of the University of Minnesota.

A program of special music was enjoyed at the dinner by the Alumni Association and their guests. The banquet was the first of a series of social events marking the inauguration of Doctor Kent.

SKELETONS ARE FOUND

VERNAL, Utah.—The skeletons of two monster animals, a diplodocus and a brontosaurus, believed to have lived in this country 80,000,000 years ago in the Jurassic period, have been discovered in this vicinity by Barnum Brown, curator of fossils and reptiles at the American Museum of Natural History at New York.

Brown is planning to return here with an expedition in the near future to dig the valuable bones out of the sandstone rock in which they have been preserved for these ages. It is estimated that the work will require two months.

ASSEMBLY HEARS U. L. PRESIDENT

Dr. R. A. Kent Discusses Present Day Use of Constitution

DOCUMENT IS PRAISED

"They did not do what was expected of them—they saw ahead," declared Dr. Raymond A. Kent, newly selected president of the University of Louisville and former Dean of Arts and Science at Northwestern. He was speaking of the actions of the founders of our American Constitution while delivering his address "The Founding of the Constitution and Its Relation to Present Day Affairs," Tuesday, November 19, in Memorial hall during the regular University convocation. "They did not fear the voters; they feared the future. They acted in respect to the future."

Because of the outlook of its founders, the Constitution is today, in Doctor Kent's opinion, the greatest political instrument in existence. Doctor Kent said that, even so, it is at times greatly misinterpreted for some persons claim that it should not be tampered with while others hold it up to ridicule. Some say that the Constitution is being used to abolish freedom of speech even though we must have this privilege in order to progress. According to Dr. Kent, these misconceptions of the Constitution are due to a limited point of view. He said that a comprehensive view was necessary.

All politicians may be grafters, but this is not necessarily so. If we are to show patriotism, we must express it in some individual way. In the opinion of Doctor Kent, there is no better way to do this than to take our share in politics and to avoid graft at the same time.

"Are we desirous of perpetuating that type of government for which this Constitution was founded?" asked Doctor Kent. "If we are, he tells us that we should lend a hand and at the same time keep an eye on the future."

Ligon's Father Dies at Old Ancestral Home

Prof. M. E. Ligon, principal of University High school, was called to Owen county Monday, for the funeral of his father, Michael Francis Ligon, who died at his home in Owen county at 3 a. m. Monday. Mr. Ligon, who was 77 years old, had been suffering with heart trouble for more than a year, but had been confined to his bed only a week. Funeral services were held at the Salem Baptist church, in Owen county at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning, with Reverend Oliver, of East Hickman, Fayette county, officiating, assisted by the Reverends Kemper and Prather, of Owen county.

Mr. Ligon was born on a farm in Owen county in 1842, where he spent his entire life. His father and grandfather were noted educators in Virginia and Kentucky. William Ligon, grandfather of Michael Ligon, was the author of an arithmetic book, which was published in Richmond, Va., in 1808. Michael Ligon, was always very much interested in education, and gave to his children an opportunity to get an education. Mr. Ligon was married in 1873 to Miss Polly A. Stonestreet, of Owen county; and they had lived together on the farm until Mr. Ligon's death. He was a member of the Baptist church of Owen county and had been an officer in that church for many years.

Mr. Ligon is survived by four sons: A. F. Ligon, A. B. and O. T. Ligon, of Owen county, and M. E. Ligon of the University High school; and one daughter, Mrs. W. T. Davis of Owen county.

'Old Ironsides' Soon Will Be Completed

Boston.—The work of reconstructing the frigate Constitution at the Navy Yard here is 68 per cent completed, according to naval officers in charge of the work.

It is the intention of the committee in charge of the rebuilding to have the wooden frigate finished by next spring so that it can take an active part in the tercentenary celebration of the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

The larger part of the hulk of "Old Ironsides," as the ship is commonly known, is finished. Workmen are actively engaged in preparing the main deck for its fittings.

Although no funds were appropriated by Congress in March, 1923, when the rebuilding was authorized, thousands of dollars have been contributed by school children and adults to recondition the famed ship of colonial days.

It was estimated that more than $450,000 has already been spent in reconstruction work on the old frigate.

SIX CONFERENCE TILTS SCHEDULED

Grid Card for 1930 is Almost Completed; Wildcats Will Meet Two Newcomers Next Year; Two Dates Are Still Open

Kentucky's football schedule for fall will not be lacking in conference games as six conference teams have already been booked, with a possibility of scheduling another.

Coach Gamage is looking to 1930 to be his best year as coach of a Wildcat team, providing all men are eligible and none of them quit school.

Virginia has filled the place of Centre on the schedule and Duke, a new-comer to the conference, will be met November 8, at Durham, North Carolina. Just who will be the Wildcats first opponents has not been definitely decided but there is still a chance of Kentucky meeting some eastern team early in the season. Kentucky's schedule follows:

Oct. 4—Open.
Oct. 11—Open.
Oct. 18—Washington and Lee, here.
Oct. 25—Virginia, here.
Nov. 1—Alabama, here.
Nov. 8—Duke, Durham, North Carolina.
Nov. 15—V. M. I., here.
Nov. 27—Tennessee, Knoxville.

Templin Attending Journalistic Meet

Edwards M. Templin left Saturday to represent the Kentucky chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, at the national convention, which is being held this week at the University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo.

Mr. Templin is treasurer of the local chapter of Sigma Delta Chi; managing editor of the Kernel, and editor-in-chief of the "Kampus Kat." He is registered as a freshman in the College of Law.

Buddy Hackman, big, blonde, backfield ace, is the interfering half of Tennessee's touchdown twins. This great combination will try their luck against the Wildcats on Thanksgiving. Hackman has the distinction of never having lost, although Kentucky subjected the Vols to a scoreless tie last year.

Kittens Mark Time Until November 30

Coach Pribble is grooming his Big Green crew for the final clash of the season. The Frosh gridsters meet the "rhinies" of the University of Tennessee at Knoxville on Saturday, November 30.

Little is known of the prowess of the Tennessee yearlings this season, but last fall the gang from "down yonder" helped themselves to a rather lopsided win, and can be expected to offer sterling competition for Pribble's youngsters.

The green-clad outfit that represents Kentucky this season is the strongest aggregation of freshman football talent that has ever trotted forth on the local campus. Let by their sparkling captain and quarterback, Ellis Johnson, the Green has run rough-shod over all opposition to date and expects to bring back the scalp of the embryonic Vols. A win for the Kittens will establish them as one of the outstanding freshman teams of the South.

V. M. I. SQUADRON LOSES TO 'CATS

Kentuckians Trounce Cadets To Gain Sixth Victory of Season; V. M. I. Had Lead at End of First Half.

Coach Harry Gamage and his fighting team of Kentucky Wildcats returned Sunday from a week-end journey to Lexington, Va., where they had a pleasant visit as the guests of the Virginia Military Institute eleven. The Kentuckians gained their sixth victory in seven starts and added another to their conference victims by trouncing the Flying Squadron, 23 to 12.

Off to a slow start, the 'Cats were trailing at the halfway mark by a 6 to 3 count. But Coach Gamage told his charges a few vivid stories during the intermission and the big Blu team came to life to put the game on ice. The margin of victory should have been greater but a Cadet substitute intercepted one of Ford's passes in the closing period and slipped through the Kentucky second team for a 55-yard touchdown sprint.

The Wildcats threatened to cross the Cadet goal early in the game when the ball was advanced to the 12-yard line with a first down. Three tries at the line failed to gain so Captain Covington dropped back and booted the oval from placement through the uprights for three points. The 'Cats lacked power to do anything more in the first half, but the Virginians took advantage of their laxity to forge ahead with a marker and Biggs plunged through the center for ten yards and a score.

The rejuvenated Blues scored early after the last period when Covington returned a punt to the Cadet 2-yard line. Spicer went over for the touchdowns and his pass to Yates was good for the extra point.

Constant pecking away at the lighter quadron line provided two more counters for the Gamagemen, Spicer carrying the ball over on both occasions after it had been placed deep in the enemy territory by consistently brilliant runs by Covington. The Wildcat captain came into his own for the first time of the current season, featuring the fray with his long returns of punts and plays from scrimmage.

Spicer, with his three touchdowns, Jack Phipps, and Kelly also did their share of the work in the Kentucky efforts. The Blue line for the most part of the game was outplayed by the outweighed Cadets in what turned out to be rather a drab game.

The lineups and summary:

Eugene McEver, the "Wild Bull," and Tennessee's bid for All-American fame, will encounter much difficulty e'er he crosses the Kentucky goal next Thursday. Leading the South at present in touchdowns scored this season, McEver will be closely watched by the Wildcats when he trots around on Stoll field.

Annual Cadet Hop Series Will Start Saturday at Gym

The first of a series of five Cadet Hops, which are given annually by the University R. O. T. C. Regiment, will be held Saturday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock in the Men's Gymnasium. Toy Sandefur's Rhythmic Kings will furnish the music for the occasion.

The series of military dances will be given earlier this year than ever before, according to the approved social calendar in the office of the Dean of Men. The other four Hops will be given on the afternoons of December 7, January 3, February 1, and March 22. Scabbard and Blade, honorary military organization, which is in charge of the regimental social functions, has already received permission to give the annual Military Ball on February 21, the night before the basketball game with Washington and Lee.

The Cadet Hop Saturday will be the first school dance of the season with the exception of the SuKy dance given after the W. and L. football game.

Season tickets for the five dances, are good for five admissions at any one dance, were put on sale last week by members of Scabbard and Blade and by the officers of the military department. The cost of the season tickets is $1.50, while single admissions, including dates, at the door will be 50 cents.

Daily Practices For Basketeers Start on Monday

Coach Johnnie Mauer announced today that daily basketball practice would start Monday in preparation for the hardest schedule that has ever been attempted by a Wildcat team.

The Wildcats have been practicing three times a week for the past month and a half, minus the basketball men who are out for football and will not report until one week after Thanksgiving. The practices thus far have been devoted to fundamentals and a new offense, while special attention has been given to men of last year's freshman team.

Five seniors, Captain McBrayer, Stanley Milward, Cecil Combs, Lawrence McGinnis and Hays Owens plus Louis McGinnis and Carey Spicer juniors, will form the nucleus of the squad this year. McLane, Kleiser, Yates, Trotter, Bell, Bronston, Miller and Sisk are new men who are pushing the lettermen for their places.

Kentucky fans will be given one treat this year in that all but three game of the 15 scheduled will be played at home. Miami and Creighton College, two teams that have made names for themselves in basketball, will probably be the most outstanding games of the year.

THE COLONEL COMMENTS

Result of the "scrambled egg" and "giddy Gamage" plays—"Formation. Eeny-meeny-miny-mo; try to guess them as you go. Just a chance to hit the mark; shooting in the utter dark. There's one more secret play. Bibbity-bibbity-sibbity-sab; close your eyes and make a grab. Make your guess with quaint surmise, scan the scores with wild surprise!"—John Kieran in The New York Times.

I'll wager that the Wildcat basketballers are the only netters in the country that Practice in Silks. Coach Mauer has diked his boys out in the tidy underwear used as game suits last season. "Clothes make the man"—wonder if he thinks that also applies to basketball players?

Tennessee may not have the best team in the Conference but any backfield quartette that can keep Paul Heydrick on the substitute bench must be pretty hot. Last week, he was personally responsible for 32 points against Carson-Newman while the Vol varsity vacationed. And he is the same elusive Mercury that smeared Kentucky's Big Green with Sloan's liniment and an overwhelming defeat in 1928. In one freshman track meet last spring, Heydrick accumulated 26 of the Rats' 34 points, performing in field and weight events and on the track.

When some one recently called our attention to a headline in a college paper, which read "Knut Rockne Began Life in a Postoffice" we immediately grew suspicious. We wondered if he hadn't come Special Delivery, but it remained for some wise guy to suggest that this was a genuine case of Registered Male.

Ligon is Present For Inauguration Of R. M. Hutchins

Professor M. E. Ligon, of the College of Education, left Monday to attend the inauguration of Dr. Robert M. Hutchins as president of the University of Chicago. Professor Ligon, graduate of that University, was selected by President Frank L. McVey to represent the University of Kentucky at the services, which were held Tuesday morning. Professor Ligon returned to Lexington that night immediately following the exercises.

Dr. Robert M. Hutchins is the son of Dr. William J. Hutchins, president of Berea College, who will be one of the honored guests at the inauguration. The speakers at the service will be Dr. J. R. Angell, president of Yale University, where Dr. Robert M. Hutchins served as dean of law school; Dr. David Kinley, president of the University of Illinois, and Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern University. A dinner in honor of the new president will be given Tuesday night.

Rockne Got First Football Practice Passing Mailbags

"Knut Rockne's first job was in the Chicago Post Office at the handsome salary of five bucks per week," says Jimmy Corcoran in the December issue of College Humor. "I am told by old time employees of the P. O. that Rockne could toss a mail sack farther and faster than anyone in that place. One day he asked for a raise. They gave him an extra fifty cents per week, and that's one reason why Knute Rockne went to Notre Dame. The other was that he could sprint and pole vault. He did not go to Notre Dame as a football player, and I will be willing to bet my straw skimmer on that. I have it from one of King Knute's old associates, who will go nameless here (in order to save his hide), that Rock arrived at the South Bend station with a derby hat, a sweater with a choker collar, a pair of trousers that had given good mileage—and a track suit. You can believe this or not. Still another crony swears that Rock borrowed forty-five dollars to get his first peek at the golden dome of Notre Dame. I wish to be neutral here, although I will state that Rock paid back the forty-five."

"In looking over my favorite boxing guide, I see no record of the mysterious conductor who barnstormed the town of Niles, Michigan, La Porte, Indiana, and way places, polishing off some of the ham-and-egggers of the day. In fact, there may never have been a mysterious conductor; and for fear that some one will accuse this splendid old Norseman of picking up a stray iron lad here and there in his freshman year, I will not place the stamp of fact upon it. Let it go as a rumor."

The phone rang at McGary & Butler's. Jeff Russell answered. Lady—Do you have any vegetables? Jeff—Yes, ma'am, oranges, apples, peaches, grapes and lemons.

Professors Apply Old Doctrine

At the end of the recitation hour the boy sitting in the corner who wears a large "K" sweater, dashes for the door and in doing so turns over chairs but never stops to pick them up.

Picture: Football player—majoring in journalism—must be on time for lecture.

The following are just a few pen portraits of the professor's conception of the insects that infest our campus:

The engineer is easily distinguished; he is always tearing something to pieces in order to see what it is made of, never constructing anything.

The Arts and Science student likes to play. The "Ag" student is more easily confused with the foregoing types for they are subject to any affliction. One may always locate him at a basketball game by the manner in which he "razzes" the referee; he thinks that he is calling hogs.

Then there is that individual who makes an everlasting impression upon everyone. He sits by one's side during a lecture and asks the time of day at five-minute intervals, and when class is over, asks for the notes that he did not have time to take.

The girls are the only ones who censure the history student. He never remembers dates.

CO-EDS TURN AMAZONS

When LaCrique, sober "ultra" magazine of the University of Chicago, said that co-eds go to college either to get an education or a husband, university women admitted that was reasonable.

But when the same article charged that sororities and women's clubs were "matrimonial clearing houses," which "put their pledges on exhibit and gradually developed them to the point where they were wearing some man's fraternity pin," irate co-eds resented, stormed publication office with protests of "unfair."

Editors of the magazine locked the doors, ventured out on the campus only when necessary.

The writer remained anonymous.

The Wisconsin university baseball team has resumed fall practice after a lapse of several years.

"Why should I lend you five dollars?"

"For sentimental reasons."

"How's that?"

"I've got a date."

He: "Your face seems familiar to me."

She: "Maybe I'm your companionate wife!"

FESTIVAL WILL BE HELD TODAY

Annual Event Sponsored by College of Agriculture Will Be Presented at Judging Pavilion

The Annual Fall Festival, sponsored by the College of Agriculture, will be held at 7:30 this evening, at the Judging Pavilion on the University farm.

The public is invited to attend. It is an opportunity to "Know your University" and especially the College of Agriculture and what they are doing.

Each year the College of Agriculture, previous to the International Live Stock Show held at Chicago, holds their own Little International Show which is an exhibition of the live stock that the University of Kentucky takes to Chicago.

This year the name has been changed from "Little International Show" to "Annual Fall Festival" with many new features added. The Block and Bridle club in the College of Agriculture is doing their best to make this the biggest and best show the University has ever held.

The program will consist of exhibits made by the Agronomy, Dairy Animal Industry, and Home Economic departments of the college; some musical selections furnished by the University band, a style show, and other attractive features.

Heretofore the Home Economic Department has played a minor role in this show, but this year they have taken a leading part and they will add much color to the festival. One feature is the "Human Stock Judging" contest which is a novelty and should prove very interesting entertainment.

VIRGINIA STUDENTS MUST GET CONSENT TO MARRY

Undergraduates at the University of West Virginia will not be permitted to marry without the written consent of both parents, according to a new ruling of the faculty. The penalty for breaking the rule will be dismissal from the institution. The ruling was adopted as the result of too many students elopements during the last school year.

Classic Game Is Almost Here

the Vols to a 21-point lead but a nearer comparison of the two teams may be drawn from the fact that Alabama was weakest against the Knoxville boys while the Cats were crippled when they faced the strongest 'Bama lineup of the current season.

Captain Will Ed Covington, badly injured in mid-season, has recovered completely and is anxious to take a parting crack at Kentucky's ancient rivals. "Cov" indicated by his marvelous performance in Virginia last week when the rest of the team was somewhat dormant, that he is in top form to lead his mates in an all-important contest. Jack Phipps also signalled his return by starring against the Cadets although he still wears a cast on his left hand to protect a badly shattered finger. Tom Phipps, Andrews, Rose, and Spicer, who have been among the casualties at other times during the season, have rounded into condition and are fit to carry the battle to the visitors.

Major Bob Neyland, who directs the athletic destinies of the Tennessee teams, refuses to take the Kentucky game lightly. No matter how much inferior the Wildcats may seem, they have the faculty of upsetting the hopes of the neighbors just when the game appears to be safely in the bag. Last fall, when the Vols headed strongly for the title, the men of Gamage up and sprung a surprise in the face of McEver and company, ruining their chances with a 0 to 0 tie. This season for the second time Kentucky is the only strong team in the way of Tennessee, now tied with Tulane for the lead.

Major Bob has a great team of veteran performers to turn loose in the face of Kentucky next week. Captain Howard Johnson will lead the Vols from his berth at tackle. Jake Johnston will balance the line on the other side while Fuller and "Hobo" Thayer, the latter a strong bid for all-conference honors, will be at the guard posts. The old reliable, Jim Finney, will be the snapper-back and Paul Hug and Fritz Brandt are scheduled to patrol the flanks.

The Tennessee backfield is already known wherever football is played. A versatile veteran in the person of Jimmy Dodd will call the signals as well as attending to the kicking and passing for his team. Then the great touchdown terrors, Hackman and McEver, will start in the half-back roles. In all probability, Quinn Decker, great defensive fullback, will be sufficiently recovered to take the assignment at his regular job. If not, Ty Disney, a product of Kentucky, will assume his duties for the Beer Keg battle.

Transylvania Has Ambitious Students

Ninety Percent of Men and Women are Working Their Way Through College

Transylvania College students are not lacking in ambition, according to a recent survey made by Ernest Crutcher, student secretary. More than 90 per cent of the men and women attending classes at Transylvania are working their way, either wholly or partially, through college.

It is believed that this percentage is the largest of any college in the State and stands high among all colleges of the country. The percentage among the men students is nearly 100 per cent, according to Mr. Crutcher. Some of the students work for their entire expenses, but the largest group is composed of those who work for their meals.

Paper routes, waiting on tables, chauffeuring, riving furnaces, cleaning and pressing clothes, tutoring and various forms of sales work are the leading occupations among the men working their way. A number of students preach on Sunday to earn part of their expenses.

Working in restaurants and tea rooms and caring for children lead the list of occupations for the women students.

The fellowships and scholarships are offered by leading educational institutions in Austria, Czechoslovakia, France, Germany, Hungary, Italy, and Switzerland. Students interested in this matter should communicate with The Students' Bureau, Institute of International Education, New York City. All applications must be submitted before March 1.

Season Is Opened For Debate Teams

While various athletic teams representing the University of Kentucky are about to close a successful season, the representatives of the department of public speaking are beginning a season of considerable activity when they meet teams at Taylorsville, Shelbyville and Eminence.

On Thursday two teams composed of James Porter, Sydney Schell, Kermit Pack and Pat Rankin will debate at Shelbyville and Taylorsville on the question: "Can International Peace Be Accomplished by International Agreements?" James Porter and Sydney Schell will support the affirmative of the question at Shelbyville on Thursday morning and Pat Rankin and Kermit Pack will defend the negative at Taylorsville in the afternoon.

On the same day, Hugh Jackson and H. C. Smith will debate the University of Louisville at Eminence on the question: "Should the United States Government Own and Operate the Hydro-Electric Power Plants?" Jackson and Smith have the affirmative of the question. While the strength of the team from the University of Louisville is not known, it is hoped that the affirmative squad will be able to record a victory.

Engineering Dean Lectures Before International Club

Dean F. Paul Anderson, of the Engineering College, spoke at the regular weekly meeting of the International Relations Club of the University at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, at McVey hall.

Dean Anderson's subject was, "Cooperation of Nations by means of their Power Resources." He stated that the dissemination of knowledge was for the welfare of all, and that there was a spirit of altruism in the engineering world. He cited the great engineering conferences that are held annually: the Power Conference in London, and the International Conference in Tokyo, which studied the relations of heating and ventilating; the Saranac Illumination Conference; and the Cable and Network conference in Italy. He said that there is a tendency to establish international standards in engineering.

Dean Anderson told of the progress of the different nations in engineering. The nations taking the lead are: India, iron ore; Italy, arts and sciences; Germany, applied sciences; England, use of iron; and the United States, power and production.

Dean Anderson attributed the new types of architecture to the advance of engineering skill. "The huge skyscrapers that are rapidly rising in our large cities are models of beauty and skill. The Flatiron Building of a decade or more ago, was a momentous stride in building. Today this once huge edifice is but a sapling in a forest of great trees. With 30 story buildings going up at present there seems no limit to which the builders may look.

"The modern trend in building is toward combining the beautiful with the substantial. America leads in this field and every city of size has many tall, graceful structures thrusting their tops into the clouds. "The struggle between the railroads and the automobile has benefited the progress of the world; fine new roads, and better means of communication have resulted. The recent Golden Jubilee in honor of the discovery of the electric light by Edison proves that the engineering and scientific world is moved by the spirit of altruism. Congratulations poured in to Mr. Edison from all over the world. He gave the world a great gift, and this is the spirit of science and engineering—dissemination of knowledge for the welfare of all."
